LEGION ATTACKS SECRETARY MELLON

His Misrepresentation Facts When He Says There Can't Be Bonus and Lower Taxes—Coolidge Not Likely to Take Stand Until His Message Is Read to Congress.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 14.—President Coolidge for the time being has adopted a policy of watchful neutrality in the open warfare that again has broken out between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and the American Legion over the soldiers' bonus.

The president has not placed his O. K. on the Mellon program for a wholesale slashing of income taxes and a rejection of the bonus. Neither has he indicated that he would approve the bonus bill, which is regarded as certain of passage early in the new congress.

Observing the reference for which is famous, the president is simply "sitting tight" and watching the secretary of the treasury and the Legion fight it out for the plan of public opinion, which in the end will have an all-powerful effect in deciding the issue.

It is probable the president's attitude will not be known until the delivery of his first message to congress, on December 4 or 5.

Politics has become so entwined with the bonus question that all party leaders are stepping carefully and gingerly around the issue raised by Mellon, which, boiled down, places the issue in the light of "reduced taxes or a bonus."

With the entire house and a third of the senate coming up for re-election next year, all candidates realize the potency of a tax reduction argument on voters already groaning under a continuation of war time taxes.

At the same time a majority of both houses are committed, orally and in writing, to passage of the bonus bill. Many of them campaigned in their districts on the issue and won, and today around the capitol are the maledictions that are being privately heaped on Mellon's head for raising the embarrassing issue of tax reduction or a bonus.

Many members of congress are pledged to both. Into this hectic situation the Legion tossed today the direct accusation that Mellon has deliberately supplied congress with misinformation concerning the nation's financial condition.

Pointing out that President Harding vetoed the bonus bill after being informed by Mellon that the country faced a huge deficit the Legion then reminds President Coolidge that the fiscal year was concluded with a favorable balance of $300,000,000.

"It is unfortunate," said a letter to the Legion has sent to Representative Green, Republican, of Iowa, chairman of the ways and means committee, "that a high government official occupying the position as head of the government's financial administration, will deliberately and officially supply inaccurate and misleading statements to congress for its official use in drafting legislation."

Concerning Mellon's new tax program, the Legion letter says: "His (Mellon's) purpose is, of course, apparent. He wants to again fool the people—he wants to get their backing under a misapprehension of the facts, for his plan to cut the big millionaires' taxes, so he is forced to include the little fellow in the reduction plans."

In the opinion of many members of congress, privately voiced, congress will get around the issue by winter by passing the bonus and also cutting taxes—although perhaps not to so large an amount as Mellon requests.

In any event the bonus is regarded as certain of passage, even over a presidential veto, and some tax reduction is looked upon as certain.

Meantime the Democrats are watching with considerable glee the Republican discomfiture that has been provided by the Mellon-Legion warfare and the consequent embarrassment to Republicans generally.

Forbes Gets 2 "Lies" In

Has To Be Restrained From Attacking Mortimer.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Nov. 14.—Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans Bureau, today branded as lies all charges of graft and corruption in the award of hospital contracts during his administration.

Testifying before the senate investigating committee Forbes twice shouted "lie" to accusations made by Elias H. Mortimer of Philadelphia, his chief accuser. On one occasion Forbes was so overcome with anger the committee was forced to quiet him.

Mortimer sat directly opposite Forbes and the two men glared at each other.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Dr. Edgar General Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician to the late President Harding, sought to obtain $459,000 worth of government supplies, including whiskey, for a soldiers' home at Dayton, Ohio, Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans Bureau, testified today before a special senate investigating committee.

Forbes said he had blocked the removal of these supplies from the supply depot at Perryville, Maryland, thus widening the breach between himself and Sawyer, testimony concerning which Forbes gave at length to the committee yesterday.

"Did you fill this order?" Forbes was asked.

"I refused to fill it," was the reply.

"Why?"

"The quantities were very much in excess of what was necessary."

"Why did you not fill it in part?"

"The Dayton home already had its share of surplus supplies from the Veterans Bureau."

Reverting to the sale of goods at Perryville, Forbes made the flat statement that he assumed complete responsibility for the transaction.

The Dayton Soldiers' Home referred to by Forbes is the Central Branch of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers. The members are understood to be mostly veterans of the Civil War.

Forbes introduced a memorandum showing the quantities of supplies requisitioned by Sawyer for the Dayton institution. This list was headed with an item calling for $12,000 worth of whiskey. The list also called for 50,000 hand towels, 50,000 bath towels, 10,000 hand towels, and $100,000 worth of sheets, although there were less than 1,000 men at the home. Another item on the list was for twenty barrels of ethyl alcohol.

MILTON MAN SHOOTSELF

Fred Martin, Mentally Deranged, Uses Shotgun in Ending Life at Brother's Home in Highland.

While suffering from what is believed to have been a fit of temporary mental derangement, Fred Martin, 46 years old, a brother of Louis Martin, who lives on the Kingston road about one-half mile north of Highland, took his life shortly after 5 o'clock Monday afternoon by shooting himself through the head with a shotgun.

Mr. Martin had been making his home with his brother and for some time had suffered from nervous trouble. This condition had become so acute that he had been kept under almost constant observation.

Later Monday afternoon while all the members of the family were temporarily away, he took a shotgun and committed suicide.

Mr. Martin is survived by his father and brother, Louis Martin, his wife and six daughters.

Immediately after the tragedy occurred George S. Miller of Marlborough was notified. He went to the house and made a thorough investigation. Informally he expressed his opinion that death was the result of temporary mental derangement during which Mr. Martin had committed suicide.

The funeral was held at the Methodist Church at Milton this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by the pastor of the church, Sunshine Lodge of Odd Fellows, of which Mr. Martin had been a member for several years.

MRS. JARLEY GIVES HER 1923 REVUE

At Holy Cross Parish House—Local People as Wax Figures More Amusing Than Originals.

A very modern Mrs. Jarley exhibited her wax works at the Holy Cross parish house on Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Girls' Friendly Society of the church.

Mrs. F. B. Hibbard and Miss Mary Ingraham sponsored the entertainment.

Mrs. George F. Chandler acted as Mrs. Jarley and explained how the figures from the original Mrs. Jarley's show had been renovated and brought up to date without disturbing the delicate mechanism which controlled the movements.

A traffic policeman was the first figure shown, excellently portrayed by Herman Quater, whose royal bearing left no doubt that this had formerly been a figure of King Henry the Eighth.

A modern dapper, impersonated by Miss Margaret Winter, was a made-over figure of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt. When wound up in former years she thrust the deadly asp to her heart, but Miss Winter wielded a deadly powder puff with as great effect.

Miss Catherine Benjamin was a radio girl, and as she earnestly "plugged in," the word state sounds which rang through the hall brought shouts of laughter from everyone but the radio girl herself, who never lost her earnest look of deep interest in the sound waves.

The next number on the program was a scream. Miss Plancher and Wilson Van Brumer were the wax Marathon dancers. Their jerky movements when wound up were funny enough, but the difficulty was Mrs. Jarley and her assistants had in stopping them kept the audience in an uproar.

Jack Dempsey was well represented by Biting Burgevin. Mrs. Jarley explained that this figure was formerly that of Samson, which accounted for his mighty strength. It is certain that the Philistines were slain in scientific fashion by this figure who when wound up proceeded to knock out Gimp, to the great delight of the boys in the audience.

Then came Mary Pickford, the idol of the silver screen, who had formerly been Little Eva in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Miss Jane Schoonmaker, in a wig of golden Pickford curls, made a great hit in the part.

Naturally Charlie Chaplin followed. Mrs. Charles Bradley had a splendid make-up that few in the audience suspected that this was not a boy. The original figure, said Mrs. Jarley had been Napoleon crossing the Alps.

Miss Eva Rand was wheeled in next, representing Gail Borel. On being wound up, she burst into grand opera with splendid effect, the mechanism becoming stuck on high G and had to be oiled before releasing her from her high note.

An ancient figure of The Miser was excellently acted by Harold Kuehn, although his modern wealth took the form of two heads of precious coal which he gleefully exhibited over piece by piece.

With the rattle of tin and the tooting of a Klaxon, Mrs. Ruth Seare entered in a miniature Ford car, she shook and bounced and giggled when wound up till a horrible crash was followed by a dead silence, and the engine was found to have passed out.

This gave a great opportunity to Richard Burgevin as Mrs. Jarley's helper Johnnie. He lay flat on the ground with his head under the car looking for the trouble but was unable to locate it. Johnnie was one of the hits of the evening. With his overalls and his chewing gum, his oil can and his feather duster, he gave a splendid characterization of an exasperating lay youth who did nothing right and was the bane of Mrs. Jarley's life.

The last figure of the exhibition and one of the most delightful, was little Larry Ithies, who posed as the well known, the advertisement "Time to Re-Tire." Dressed in pajamas, with the big tire on his shoulder, he yawned and stretched in the most natural manner and won all hearts in the audience.

The figures which had been arranged by Johnnie in a semi-circle around the stage, were then made to move simultaneously, while Mrs. Jarley bowed her acknowledgments in the center and the last figure, Johnnie, was forced to bend his third leg in answer to the applause.

One case was put over the term and the trial of Philip Sasso, indicted for murder, second degree, was taken up. Defendant will receive sentence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock along with several others charged with the same crime.

Lewis Howard, colored, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder, second degree, in court changed his plea of not guilty to the crime charged in the indictment and entered a plea of guilty to manslaughter, first degree. Howard, who is 23 years old, is a native of Baltimore and as he had formerly stated that he had served five years for highway robbery, which statement he denied in court this morning, sentence was not pronounced today but was deferred until his statement could be verified. A PAUL WHITEMAN ORCHESTRA FOR A KINGSTON DANCE

Dance Music King of Ziegfeld Folies Sends Orchestra Under Leadership of Wheeler Wadsworth, Famous Saxophone Artist.

When The Freeman recently predicted that the announcement of the music for The Junior League Fete would come as a surprise to the people of Kingston, it made a very conservative statement. In fulfillment of its promise, The Freeman is able to announce that at The Junior League Fete to be held at the Army on Thanksgiving eve, November 25, the music will be furnished by a Paul Whiteman orchestra.

The Junior League wishes it to be understood that Paul Whiteman himself will not be present. As is well known, Mr. Whiteman with his original orchestra is now playing in New York city with the Ziegfeld Folies.

He has, however, an organization comprising several orchestras of the same standard, of the Folies orchestra, made up of men who he has trained, which are in great demand for society occasions in New York and elsewhere. The orchestra which is under the leadership of Wheeler Wadsworth has been selected for The Junior League Fete on Thanksgiving eve.

Wheeler Wadsworth is acknowledged to be the finest saxophone player in this country. He is well known through phonograph records, with the orchestra which is to play here, has just returned from an extended European tour, playing the capitals of Europe and extending his fame and popularity throughout foreign countries.

To the best of anybody's recollection, this is the first time that an orchestra representing the international famous King of Dance Music has played in Kingston. The Whiteman and Wadsworth reputations make it certain that local apostles of Terpsichore will not fail to take advantage of this unusual treat.

On the night of the dance, it will be noticed that each number played by the orchestra will be presented more as an act staged upon a program rather than would routine playing orchestra would routine them. It is hoped that Mr. Wadsworth will render a solo during the evening.

An advertisement of The Junior League's Thanksgiving Eve Fete appears elsewhere in The Freeman, and the price of tickets as there stated is not a misprint.

Plans for the Fete indicate that in other ways besides the musical line it will be the biggest success of many seasons. The proceeds will be used in Kingston for the baby welfare work of The Junior League and undoubtedly many people will combine the opportunity of helping to guard the health of Kingston's babies with the chance to enjoy a wonderful evening's entertainment.

Tickets for the Fete are now on sale at the stores of E. Winter's, Sons, Wall street; William O'Reilly, Broadway, and the Connelly Drug Company, Broadway and the Strand.

OPPOSITION RENEWED TO ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Norfolk, Va., Nov. 14.—Opposition to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterways project was voiced here today by Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, at the second session of the Deeper Waterways Association.

"It has not yet been made clear why the United States, which has already been heavily taxed for foreign account, should indulge in an expenditure of a primary sum of $250,000,000 on a dubious waterway project in a foreign territory," said Moore. "It is now virtually admitted that the project is more a water power scheme than it is in the interest of navigation."

Among those addressing the two sessions of the convention were J. Spencer Smith, president of the New Jersey State Board of Commerce and Navigation; Congressman J. Charles Latham of Maryland; Dr. Alfred Johnson of Brookline, Mass., and visiting senators, congressmen, governors and mayors.

MRS. STOKES WINS SEPARATION

New York, Nov. 14.—Helen H. Wood Stokes today won her suit for separation from William Earle Dodge Stokes, 73 year old millionaire, who failed in his own efforts to divorce her.

Counsel for Stokes ran up the white flag at the very outset of the suit in the supreme court this morning, declaring that "Stokes would not live with this woman even though she won all her suits."

The case was called this morning before Supreme Court Justice Wadsworth, there being no jury as in the divorce action brought by Mr. Stokes and which resulted in a victory last Friday for Mrs. Stokes.

While Mrs. Stokes, fashionably attired, waited for the calling of her case involving millions, she listened attentively to the pleas of other women who had come before Justice Wadsworth to get alimony from wayward husbands.

Mrs. Louise Myers, plainly dressed and with thinly worn shoes, asked $10 a week to support herself and child. Four other women asked amounts ranging from $5 to $10.

Stokes was not in the court room when the case opened. He had an entirely new set of attorneys, neither Max D. Steuer, who represented him in the divorce suit, or August J. Nugent, his attorneys of record, appearing for him. Leonard G. Hulse, whose firm includes a woman lawyer, fought the millionaire's battle.

Kill 2 and Get Payroll

Thugs Shoot Messengers In Brooklyn and Take $43,600.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 14.—Two bank messengers were shot to death and a payroll of $43,600 stolen by two bandits at the Fifty-fifth street station of the West End subway line in Brooklyn today.

The bandits fled in an automobile stationed at the entrance to the station. A general alarm was sent out by police.

The victims, William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, of the West End Bank, had resisted efforts of the holdup men to seize the payroll.

The crime was one of the most daring and cold blooded in many months. The bandits trailed the messengers from the time they left the bank.

The bank employees were just going down the stairs of the station when the two bandits, with drawn guns, met them, demanding the payroll money contained in a black bag, and when the messengers attempted to resist them, opened fire.

Both messengers were instantly killed.

The thieves snatched the bag, dashed down the steps of the station into the waiting automobile, which was immediately whisked off by a third man sitting at the wheel.

Both messengers were armed, but did not have an opportunity to use their weapons.

As Barlow and McLaughlin were leaving the bank, Barlow felt for his gun and found he had left it in the bank. He returned and secured his revolver.

"Don't let anyone take the money from you," one of the clerks said, laughingly.

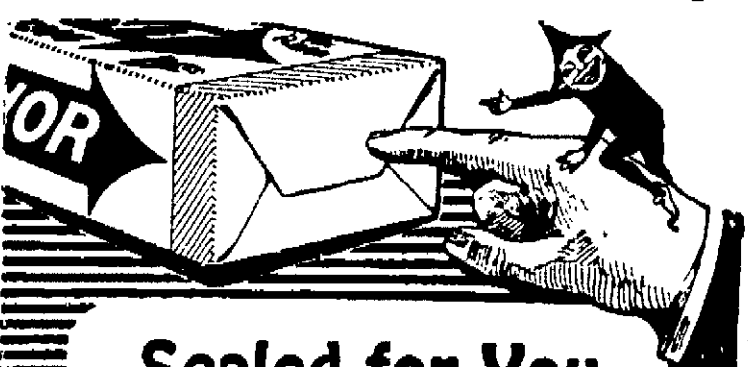

"I'll resist them till I'm dead," Barlow replied.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius

At the wedding reception the young man remarked: "Wasn't it annoying the way that baby cried during the ceremony?"

"It was simply dreadful," replied the prim little maid of honor.

"When I get married I'm going to have engraved right in the corner of the invitations: 'No babies expected!'"

Which?

A girl in the office of the Daily News at Cumberland, Md., has decided which of two sweethearts to keep. In changing a typewriter ribbon, she got a smudge of ink on her nose. One of her young men passed through the office and called: "Say, your face is dirty!" A little later the other admirer came along and said, "Honey, you have a becoming smudge on your nose."

"I have resolved," said Smithers, "from this hour to tell the absolute truth every time I speak."

"Right," said Dingham, "and you start out with a lie."

The philosopher who said a cigarette was something with fire on one end and a fool at the other probably got burnt by one.

MANY ANIMAL FOSSILS FOUND

Tooth Proves Ape Formerly Lived in Nebraska.

GIANT CAMEL'S SKULL FOUND

A tooth of a native ape, the only one known to the New World, and the skull and jaws of a monster prehistoric camel have been discovered by the Albert Thompson expedition in Nebraska. The announcement was made recently by Prof. W. D. Matthews, curator of the department of vertebrate paleontology of the American Natural History museum.

In addition to these discoveries, the Thompson expedition will assemble specimens, which, according to Professor Matthews, will form one of the richest collections in the world. It will include the skull and bones of three-toed horses, the fossil remains of the little rhinoceros, the giant pig, the mammoth, or clawed ungulate, all contemporary with animals belonging to the Lower Miocene period. The bones of these animals may have lain buried from 2,000,000 to 20,000,000 years.

The great camel is attributed by Professor Matthews to the Miocene period, from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 years ago. The prehistoric camel was one-fifth as large as the modern desert camel and weighed a third more. Other wise, said Professor Matthews, they corresponded in every respect to the modern Bactrian camel and disappeared from this continent about the Glacial period, probably to seek warmer climates.

Ape Period in Doubt.
The ape tooth Professor Matthews regards as an even more important discovery, since, he declares, it shows that apes were at one time inhabitants of America. Professor Matthews is unable to say what period the tooth belongs to without a close examination. He does not think it belongs to the Miocene age, the missing link period between ape and mankind, nor does he believe it will afford evidence which will alter his conviction that this continent was not inhabited by primitive man.

"Mr. Thompson, after six months of excavation work in the Snake Creek fossil quarries in western Nebraska, has shipped this museum eleven cases of fossils and bones of prehistoric animals," said Professor Matthews. "The specimens are being unpacked and classified at the museum, awaiting his return."

"This is the sixth year the American Natural History museum has worked the Nebraska quarries, which have yielded countless thousands of bones belonging to more than 150 species of animals, the great majority of which were thought to have existed only in prehistoric days in Europe, Asia and Africa."

Quarries Rich in Fossils.
The Nebraska quarries are probably the most extraordinary of their kind in the world, and have proved to be veritable gold mines. They were discovered in 1877 by James H. Cook, an old Indian scout and plainsman, who was then the proprietor of a large cattle ranch at Agate, at present owned by his son, Harold Cook. The quarry occupies two small hills on the Cook ranch, not far from the Nebraska river. Running through these hills is a rich layer of fossil deposit, two feet thick, containing thousands of ancient bones.

"The Nebraska state geologist in the early nineties made a survey of the quarry, and the first large fossil collection was taken from it by the Carnegie museum at Pittsburgh. Later, New York's museum began to work the quarry and obtained a considerable fossil collection. The quarry, however, is so rich in deposits that these operations barely scratched its sides, and the greater part of the buried treasures today remain untouched."

"The museum workers from time to time open up other cuts which they hope will yield the ancient mammal specimens they covet. Few have any idea of the vast amount of work and care which is entailed in planning and carrying through an expedition which seeks the remains of those ancient beasts in the hope the remains will shed additional light on the dim and distant evolutionary periods of an early world."

Hundreds of "Little Rhinoceros."
The little rhinoceros, which forms part of the museum's collection, was about the size of a half-grown calf and had two horns side by side at the front of the skull, instead of a single one, or of a pair, one behind the other. His remains are most abundant in the quarry and hundreds of skulls have been taken out by the Carnegie, the American and other institutions. The museum, as it collects from year to year further remains of the little rhinoceros, has the materials now for one or more almost complete skeletons. The animal was known to have roamed over Europe and Asia in its day.

"The giant pig was about the same size as the modern rhinoceros. Little is known of its habits, except that it possessed sharp, powerful teeth, and was well equipped to attack and bite his enemies. Some say he was carnivorous, others that he was a vegetarian. It is probable that he lived on vegetable food, but, roots and tubers. He roamed all over the northern world."

"The mammoth belonged to the ungulates. He is regular in many respects. Especially in his long neck and small head, suggesting a horse, and his deep body and rounded back, suggesting a tapir. His long, stilted legs are suggestive of a giraffe, while his feet are most like a rhinoceros, except that they have great claws instead of hoofs."

May Have Perished in River.
This animal is extremely rare except in Nebraska quarries. Although his remains have been found in Europe, they have generally been in fragments. A part of a skeleton has been found in France, in China and in India, but nowhere in the Old World have his remains been found in such abundance as in Nebraska. In the last three or four years several of his skeletons have been taken from the quarry and are on exhibition in various institutions throughout the country.

"Scientists are at a loss to account for the remains of these three animals, only in the quarry and for the great abundance of their bones there. Various theories have been brought forward to account for the enormous assemblage of their remains and nothing else. In all probability when these animals roamed the continent, the quarry was part of a channel of a stream. One theory is that these beasts venturing too far into the stream got caught in an eddy or strong currents and were thus carried to their death."

"There is another theory that coming to the stream to drink they were caught in quicksands. This might explain why the remains of smaller animals are not found with them, since these could drink from the edge of the waters, while the larger animals were forced to walk into the center of the stream to quench their thirst."

Of the habits of the ancient beasts Professor Matthews said little was known. That they filled some useful part in the far distant animal age in which they lived and that they inhabited the New World as well as the Old is shown by the many bones buried in ancient sandstone. He says that it remains to be seen whether further quest will throw any additional light on their origin.

OILS TESTED BY U. S.
Analyses Foreign and Domestic Samples for Comparative Values.
The purpose of the crude oil survey at the Bartlesville, Okla., experiment station of the bureau of mines is to analyze crude oils from every field of commercial importance in the United States and foreign countries and publish the results, according to the Department of the Interior at Washington.

The value of this work, the department said, lies chiefly in the method in which the analyses are made, every oil being run in a similar manner so that the analyses of the various oils are comparable. All fields in the United States, excepting the California fields, have been reported upon. Samples have been received from all foreign fields except the Russian.

The department also is conducting an investigation to determine the relative refining values of typical crude oils from domestic fields. All refined products will be manufactured from the crudes and the cuts will be large enough to permit a study of physical and chemical characteristics.

RARE U. S. COINS UNEARTHED

Diggers in New York Find Relics of Republic's Youth.

"Sand hogs" working 80 feet underground on the foundations of the New York Telephone company building recently in New York unearthed several rare American coins dating back to the latter part of the Eighteenth century.

An official in charge of the work said 50 feet under ground the men found the bulk of an old vessel about the size of a modern canal boat.

While digging out the bulk the men found the coins, which were bronze or copper. One bears the word "Libertas" and is dated 1783. On the reverse side is the inscription "Constitutionis Nova." Another coin found is dated 1790. Of the nine coins found no two are alike. Another find was that of a ram's skull with the horns attached. This was dug out of the mud 12 feet below the bulk.

$20,000,000 GIVEN JAPAN
Large Sum Sent by United States to Quake Sufferers.

Home Minister Goto presented at a dinner at Tokyo two handsome silver enameled vases to Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy and Col. George T. Langhorne as a token of Japan's appreciation of their services in leading the relief work for the earthquake sufferers.

Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods read a telegram stating that there still were $8,000,000 of America's gift unexpended and asking what was needed. Viscount Goto promised to supply the information.

General McCoy estimated the gifts from America by the Red Cross, the army and navy and by private subscription at $20,000,000.

Passing of an intelligence test as a requirement for marriage can be looked for within ten or twenty years, Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin faculty and nationally known sociologist, said at Madison, Wis. "Native intelligence itself, apart from education or other acquired knowledge, should be sought in the tests," he added.

Hay Fever Remedy. Artificial cold is now being pressed into service for the alleviation and cure of hay fever. Recently a number of patients went into cold storage for two hours a day for several days. Some of them emerged cured, while others reported definite improvement.

The Quivering Earth.

It has been pointed out that, in addition to the many tremors due to volcanic, or earthquake, influences, which modern delicate instruments detect, there are certain pulsations which seem to have some other origin. Some of these are diurnal and are probably due to the influence of the sun and the weather on the ground. In wet weather the sides and bottom of a valley carry a heavier load than the bounding ridges; in dry weather the case is reversed. Even the transpiration of moisture by plants may produce perceptible effects upon the fifth of the ground. Thus the face of another earth is almost as sensitive to external influences as the skin of a living creature.—Exchange.

Seek Water With Magic Virtues. The Diamond mountains of Korea are reached only by a hard road, yet thousands of pilgrims each year climb to their summits. In deep depressions in the granite peaks are pools of water, sacred water with magic virtues. He who drinks it is protected against sickness and evil. He who washes in it is cleansed of moral impurities as well as stains of travel. In some of the pools still linger the terrible dragons of olden times. So the Buddhist monks say, for in Korea the sacred faith of Gautama is enfolded with the imaginings of the people.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 14, 1923

The president of the University of Missouri says that students who own automobiles usually fail in their studies. No doubt, but he could have added with equal truth that the same is true of students who spend money and time on too much joggling of any sort.

In its discussion of the servant problem a committee appointed by the British Ministry of Labor has found that English kitchens lack many of the labor-saving devices found in American kitchens. But, it is pointed out, he might have added, called to solve the servant problem in America.

In view of the steady increase of cancer, it should be generally interesting to know that among the avoidable causes of the dread disease according to a supposed expert, are "the habitual holding of a soiled pipe in the mouth, the use of a broken or rough tooth brush, eating of excessively hot food, wearing dress, unwholesome diet, antiseptic combs and razors."

EXCEEDING THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Failure to read the Eighteenth Amendment is not confined to the ignorant classes. The Philadelphia North American, a presumably intelligent, recently printed an editorial in which appears the following paragraph:

"His (commissioner Blair's) bureau is ruled that it is not unlawful for brewers to manufacture a product of 100% alcohol strength, the contention being that this is unavoidable in the brewing process; that the strength can be reduced to comply with the law after the beer is sold, and that the government has no right to require that these honorable citizens would sell so to reduce it. This contention is a direct violation of the constitution, not only of the sale, but of the manufacture of intoxicating liquor."

The constitution does not prohibit the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in the manner described. Nor does the Volstead Law contain such prohibition. The constitution prohibits the manufacture of intoxicating liquor "for beverage purposes." The Volstead Law expressly provides that in certain contingencies liquor may, at certain stages of manufacture contain more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol, provided it is made unfit for beverage purposes, or the excess alcohol is removed before being placed on the market. Chemists are agreed that beer cannot be brewed without generating more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol and Commissioner Blair has ruled that the surplus must be distilled out before the beer is placed on the market. The product sold under this ruling complies not only with the constitution but with the Volstead Law and the ruling in no way conflicts with either the constitution or the statute. The prohibition obsession seems to deprive those whom it has seized of all sense of understanding or reason.

ANOTHER FLOCK OF JOBS.

Several years ago the legislature provided for the appointment of a committee of 21 citizens to study the rural school problem and report in 1910. This committee was given $75,000 to spend and bent itself most energetically to the task. It succeeded in spending the money and presented its report and a bill based on that report. The bill, known as the Rural School Bill, was introduced in the legislature last winter but failed to pass, the reason assigned being that nobody knew what it meant.

This bill has been strongly advocated by the members of the Committee of 21, on which Ulster county has a vigorous member in the person of Mrs. Eliza Keats Young of Milton. The bill is very lengthy and very defective. While purporting to forbid the consolidation of school districts without the consent of the voters, it provides in its very first section that this may be done without the voters having any voice in the matter. This joker is enough to condemn the bill and is conclusive evidence of either the ignorance or trickery of those who have advocated the bill on the ground that it forbids the very thing that it makes possible.

This Rural School Bill provides for numerous commissions, boards, etc., and most of them salaried and all having the power to employ an unlimited number of secretaries, clerks, etc. Some of these boards are given explicit power to consolidate districts. The effect of the whole bill will be to take away almost the last vestige of home rule and self government from the country schools and vest it in a bureaucracy in Albany with branch bureaus all over the state. Of course this will provide a position for a new boss bureaucrat in Albany at a good salary who will have charge of a lot of minor bosses all over the state, also at good salaries.

It is not evident that much will happen to the schools, but it is very evident that a plenty will happen to the taxpayers and that there will be a nice crop of new swivel chair jobs for graduates of the Academy of Lagada.

That Body of Yours

USING UP YOUR EMERGENCY RATION.

I sometimes think that the gland in the front part of the neck, the thyroid, which is so interesting to everybody these days, is much like the large tank of water that you see on the roof of many manufacturing plants.

This tank is for fire protection, and often is the source of supply for the "sprinkler" system.

If there were continuous little drips, back in the sprinkler, which constantly used up the water, it would be a serious matter should a fire occur.

Now your thyroid gland regulates many of the actions and secretions of the body. Should it be called on for "extra" work every day, you can readily see that it will not be "at full efficiency" for emergencies.

Now what are the extra things, the extra work that it has to look after? With all the little inducements on your part such as overeating, overworking, underworking, perhaps a tooth that is decayed, a cold that is not healthy.

And the most frequent cause of "leak" in the system that give the thyroid more trouble than anything else is the poisoning of the system by the accumulation of waste matter in the system.

This poison actually keeps the secretion of the thyroid so busy trying to take care of it to prevent it building up, that it has no time to look after the "leak" that may also be there.

Any one physician who has much to do with these cases, do everything to stop the escape of poison.

Accordingly they search for bad teeth, for infected tonsils, for a stagnant condition of the circulation in the gall bladder, a chronic appendicitis, pain from the nose or back of the throat, and from the caverns adjoining the nose in the cheek and forehead.

By going after it thoroughly they are usually able to locate it, and after the cause is removed, there is a great improvement in the general condition of the patient.

The improvement in the nervous condition is very marked. The heart slows down, there is less "jumpyness," and good sound sleep comes to the aid of the sufferer.

Now while a general all round search in the body for infections is a wise proceeding, the first sign of improvement is usually noticed just as soon as the intestine is made to work daily and freely.

In fact physicians will tell you that the intestine is the cause of the trouble in more cases than all the other parts of the body combined.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN BEGUN

Workers Get Final Directions And Hear National Educator Weyland
—The Rev. Father Scully Starts Subscription With $50.

The financial campaign for the continuance of Boy Scout work was begun today throughout the county. The soliciting of subscriptions for the $12,000 budget to carry on this work for the next twelve months and to clear up a deficit of last year was begun today by an army of workers. The campaign will be continued until Friday evening, November 16.

The flying squad of captains were out strong Tuesday evening at the A. M. C. A. where a final preparatory meeting was held. The captains of the teams that are working today in this city were in attendance to the men and many of their workers were present together with workers from the county and other interested persons. A total of about seventy attended.

An unsolicited contribution of $50 was received by Scout Executive Nusslage from the Rev. Joseph B. Scully, pastor of St. Mary's Church in this city.

Campaign Chairman Elva H. Bogart after the delightful dinner was served introduced R. O. Weyland, associate director of education, of the National Council of Boy Scouts from New York city. Mr. Weyland gave a very lucid discourse on the reasons for the Boy Scout movement and the benefits derived by the boys, the country and the church. He also told of his many experiences in Scout work and the endorsement of the Scout movement by judges of juvenile courts in large cities throughout the United States. He cited the case of Judge Ben B. Landover, a noted worker for boys in this country, who never had a Boy Scout arrested before him. He also told the workers some of the big reasons why they were going forth to secure subscriptions for this work, which explanation embraced the betterment of the boy, the country, the home, the community and the church. His remarks on Boy Scout achievements throughout the country were very interesting and intellectual and held the workers present with the closest of attention.

"The Boy Scout of today is further advanced in his responsibilities in general than the young man of 25 some years ago. His mingling with Scouts of all creeds has stamped out bigotry and his respect for the other fellow's rights is the dominating influence. The trouble with the country today is that there is a decided softening influence in the air. Our forefathers who settled this country were a hardy race, who made possible the phenomenal success of the country. The boy some of this hardy work out in the open spaces with responsibility, which molds his character and instills into him love for the country and the flag. The current decay and disintegration of the home is one of many reasons why you start tomorrow to raise the budget to carry on the character building enterprise of the boy."

These were the concluding remarks of the Scout educator.

Following Mr. Weyland's excellent talk Chairman Bogart then read a number of telegrams from presidents of Scout councils from neighboring counties, wishing the local council success in its campaign. The following letter from the Rev. Father Scully was also read:

St. Mary's Rectory,
Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 12, 1923.
Mr. Nusslage, Scout Executive, 418 Broadway, Kingston, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. Nusslage:

I am enclosing a check for fifty dollars ($50) as my contribution toward the Boy Scout campaign.

As you may notice by the enclosure we heartily endorse the principles guiding this great work, and also take occasion to express how deeply we are impressed by the interest and energy you have displayed ed in directing this activity of recruiting in Kingston.

Trusting that your campaign may be a great success, I am,
Sincerely yours,
JOSEPH B. SCULLY.

This first subscription was received with loud applause by the workers. Harvey A. Gordon, campaign manager, next outlined the work for the teams, each worker taking not less than twenty and not more than thirty names to solicit.
The Colonial Scout, the Ulster County Boy Scouts' official bulletin, was received throughout the county today. The paper, edited by G. H. Nusslage, Scout Executive, contains editorials by H. A. Gordon, campaign manager, and comments on the purposes of the Boy Scout movement and what it means to the community by leading citizens of the city, state and country.

PICK CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR

Who Can Have Renomination—Second Choice is Lunn—Roosevelt or Machold on Republican Ticket.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Nov. 14.—Political leaders who have visited the capitol since election already have their eyes on next year's gubernatorial election. The general belief at the capitol is that Lieutenant Governor George Lunn of Schenectady will be the democratic standard bearer in the event that Governor Alfred E. Smith refuses a renomination. There seems to be a feeling that Governor Smith could have a renomination over, should he desire.

So far as the Republican candidate for governor is concerned the capitol believes either Col. Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, or Speaker H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson will be picked as state leader of the G. O. P.

Some of the Republican leaders are inclined to think now that Col. Roosevelt has the best chance at present, but it is hard to predict what the coming session of the legislature may bring forth. It may, they virtually clinch the nomination of Speaker Machold, or it may force the Republican party to nominate Roosevelt.

Two other names in addition to Lieutenant Governor Lunn, however, are being discussed in connection with the Democratic nomination. One is Judge E. S. K. Merrill, who has just been re-elected to the supreme court bench in the Fifth judicial district, and Mayor William S. Hackett of Albany. Mayor Hackett carried the city of Albany in the last election by 15,000, something never done before by any democrat.

Whatever influence United States Senator Wadsworth may have in Republican councils in this state—and he now he is virtually regarded as the state G. O. P. leader—is expected to be thrown to Col. Roosevelt.

Senator Wadsworth, it is said, is convinced Speaker Machold would make a good governor, but he believes the name of Roosevelt would be a good "vote getter."

The coming legislative session, however, may easily develop a situation which will make it almost impossible for the Republican party to do anything but nominate Speaker Machold.

In the end the Republican ticket may be Roosevelt for governor and Machold for Lieutenant governor.

PREMIER BALDWIN IN WOMEN VOTERS' HANDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 14.—With the politicians "entrenching" for the campaign struggle, it was indicated today that the fate of Premier Stanley Baldwin and his protective tariff policy will rest with the women voters. Both the reunited Liberal party and the Laborites are attacking the premier's protection policy on the ground it will increase the cost of living.

Liberal and Labor leaders are taking every step to arouse the women of the nation and to bring them to support the opposition. The election will be held December 6 as stated by the International News Service yesterday.

The conservatives' action in calling a general election is attacked by some newspapers. The Daily Express, an independent, and some liberal newspapers accuse the Tory leaders with trickery in precipitating a general election.

The Tories are planning to offer farmers a bonus on wheat in an effort to gain their support. They are also raising the cry that, unless protection is adopted, there will be further unemployment and levy on capital, demanded by the Laborites, is bound to come.

The Liberals' program shows the deft hand of former Premier David Lloyd-George.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, living for five years in exile in Holland, has received passports permitting him and his entourage to return to Germany. Brussels reports a royalist coup, to attempt to restore him to the throne, is set for December 4. The upper picture shows Wilhelm as he appears now, bearded and aged. The lower picture shows him in the height of his power in the World War.

AMBASSADORS DELAY DECISION ON EX-CROWN PRINCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, Nov. 14.—Owing to lack of instructions from their respective governments, the council of ambassadors today conducted only routine business and did not consider the return of the former crown prince to Germany.

The diplomats had asked the Allied governments for further information and instructions upon the crown prince issue before proceeding. The date of the next meeting is set for Thursday at 5:30 o'clock.

The Fourth and Seventh districts are planning breakfasts on Wednesday morning at the Ten Eyck, where also will take place the annual luncheon of the formers on Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock, and a luncheon on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock with Mrs. Eli T. DELINQUENT GIRLS FAILED IN EFFORT TO ESCAPE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, Nov. 14.—Twenty-five girls in the juvenile detention home were under heavy guard today owing to their attempt during the night to escape with knotted sheets while four men in a motor car circled below, outside the building. The men drove away when the attempt was frustrated.

BIRD ENTOMBED BY MARTINS

Sparrow That Had Grabbed Martin's Nest Is Made the Victim of Dire Revenge.

An English ornithologist, G. Garrett, makes a specialty of observing the manners and methods followed by birds. He recently recalled the story of a sparrow which, finding a newly built martin's nest, took "possession" in the absence of the owner. The martin, seeing the usurper, called for help, and soon a thousand martins came at "full speed" to attack the sparrow; but the latter was invulnerable. After a quarter of an hour's conflict all the martins disappeared. The sparrow thought he had got the better, and the spectators judged that the martins had abandoned their undertaking.

Not in the least! They immediately returned to the charge, and, each of them having procured a little of the tempered earth with which they make their nests, they all at once fell upon the sparrow and inclosed him in the nest to perish there, although they could not drive him out.

The Split Infinitive

One thinks of that solemn warning against the enormity of the split infinitive which has done so much to aggravate the Puritanism of the bad writers who scrupulously avoid it. This superstition seems to have had its origin in a false analogy with Latin, in which the infinitive is never split, for the good reason that it is impossible to split. In the greater freedom of English it is possible and has been done for at least the last five hundred years by the greatest masters of English; only the good writer never uses this form helplessly and involuntarily but with a definite object, and that is the only rule to observe. An absolute prohibition in this matter is the mark of those who are too ignorant, or else too unintelligent, to recognize a usage which is of the essence of English speech.—Havelock Ellis, in the London Mercury.

Save His Money

An Irishman boarded a car the other day, but after a word with the conductor made for the door again.

An inspector who happened to be on the car said to him: "Surely you don't want to get off again at noon, and besides, you haven't paid your fare."

"Oh, I want to go to Southern street," said the Irishman, "and the conductor says there isn't no such place."

"Well, there isn't," answered the inspector.

"Then, faith, an' what's the good of going there, then?"

CHILD MAY CONVICT FATHER AS MURDERER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 14.—The story of a ten year-old boy was to be used today by police in an effort to send the child's father to the electric chair for murder.

Harry Freundlich, 28 years old, the father, was being held on a charge that he strangled his wife in order to secure her $1,000 life insurance. To cover up his act, police allege, the father tore a gas fixture from the wall his wife's bedroom, in which four of his five children also slept, endangering all their lives.

Freundlich, hysterical, denied the charge and pleaded to be allowed to kill himself.

The alleged murder was so well concealed, authorities declare, that for hours no suspicion of a crime was raised, and it was concluded death had been due to accidental gas poisoning.

It was not until Max Freundlich, the ten year old son, told his story that the father was arrested. Police, upon a call from neighbors, found Mrs. Freundlich dead in her bed. Gas was streaming into the room. A gas fixture apparently had fallen from the wall, leaving an open pipe. Her four children, in bed with her, had been overcome.

"Early yesterday," Max told police, "my father came into the kitchen where I sleep and woke me. He told me not to get up early—not to disturb my mother. He said he was going to work. But in a little while I began to smell gas, so I went into my mother's room. I tried to wake her but could not. Then I called neighbors."

COL. CHANDLER ENJOYED WORK

Retiring Head of State Police, Interviewed in Albany—Universal Regret At His Resignation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman, Albany, Nov. 14.—(Special)—

Aside from having been selected from all the eligibles in the state for the position of commanding officer and organizer of the New York State Troopers, having organized a state school for police; having invented the herring bone system of parking automobiles; having interested the residents of five cities to purchase by popular subscription as many barracks for his gray clad troopers; having examined from six to seven thousand applicants for membership and then attended them free while they were members of his command. Lt. Col. George Fletcher Chandler, who has resigned as head of the State Police, has done nothing, if one is to believe his modest appraisal of what he has accomplished since he organized the mounted auxiliary to the peace enforcing branch of the state government.

Lt. Col. Chandler has decided to go back to the practice of surgery and medicine and arrest disease rather than wrongdoers. When he has laid aside the picturesque uniform he has worn since 1917 he will leave behind him a record of efficiency and activity, seasoned with initiative, which graces but few tenures of public office.

Back in 1917 when Charles S. Whitman was governor, the year when the United States went into the World War and there was promise of much lawlessness, the then executive, a former district attorney, came to the decision that a state police system for New York state was needed. He cast about for a man who could organize and direct such an organization and after a careful and diligent search, found Major Chandler, who had then just returned from the Mexican border where he had served with the national guard.

"I always liked the military," said Colonel Chandler—he has been a peace officer since the Mexican outbreak—"and I agreed to undertake the task of organizing a body of men such as Governor Whitman desired. I accepted the responsibility of organization, examined all the men, designed the uniform and prepared the legislative estimate. It was simply what anyone would have done and I enjoyed the work."

It would appear that Colonel Chandler enjoyed anything that was big and important. Way back in his youth he secured a college education through concerts he gave consisting of violin and vocal selections. When he secured his sheepskin and hung out his medical shingle he became interested in the militia and forthwith went up the ladder, as it were, winning promotion and experience. Swinging in his swivel chair and reluctantly doing out information as to what had been accomplished by the New York State Troopers since its organization, Colonel Chandler consented to answer the questions which gives an insight into the growth and efficiency of the organization with which he will soon sever his connection.

"I have long been of the impression that the police should be a profession. With this thought in mind I suggested the organization of a police school at which peace officers might receive instruction in criminal matters, the ethics of the calling which they followed, information in first aid matters, an insight into the workings of the law and other subjects which are not generally possessed by policemen. The state board of regents permitted us to issue certificates and up to the present time the school has graduated over three hundred."

The economical manner in which the State Troopers were maintained is another feather in the cap of Col. Chandler. His trained and wisely scattered forces, traveling in pairs, saved millions in property, protected the rural residents of the state and helped the police in many a difficult situation.

Through the efforts and activity of Col. Chandler, residents of Troy, Batavia, Oneida, Malone, Sidney and White Plains have purchased the property and subscribed the money for the erection of barracks. The state has since purchased the barracks and land in question.

When Col. Chandler took charge of the State Troopers there existed an organization known as the New York Central detective police. This force is now under the jurisdiction of the State Troopers, every man is uniformed and the efficiency has been doubly increased.

From men Col. Chandler turned to horses. He asked for and received a station from the Jockey Club for breeding purposes and now the state raises the major of its mounts. He next acted as physician for his troopers and surgeon, too, for that matter and many a healthy man today will tell you of his skill.

"I have always believed that the state police should be far and away from influence of politics and civil service interference. That is why my men have been of the best," declared Col. Chandler in discussing the cause of the remarkable record his command has made.

Not until the present year has there been a recommendation for an increase in the salaries of the members of the state police. The last official act of Col. Chandler will be to ask for $100 a year additional for four years for his men. At the present time each enlisted trooper receives $900 a year and certain allowances for food, although in the first months of the existence of the command there was no provision made for food and each trooper was compelled to feed himself.

Col. Chandler is going back to Kingston his home city the first of

London Favors Fur and Rich Velvets

Peltry and Heavy Fabrics Used in Interesting Combination.

One-half of the fall models have their skirts all plaited together in front with classical folds extending fan-shape to the hem, and the other half have every possible scrap of fullness strained right away from the front and bunched up at the back into what has a startling resemblance to a bottle, or at any rate a very full double-looped bow with long diagonally slashed ends which reach to the bottom of the skirt or trail on the floor. This last, of course, writes a London fashion correspondent, applied only to evening dresses.

But the bunched back effect is seen on heavy cloth street dresses made to be worn under short, flaring, wide-sleeved coats of heavy embroidered or brocaded velours or fur.

Fur is on everything, a foot wide band around the bottom of a velvet or brocade cloak, cut as straight and slim as a chemise dress, with a similar straight band of exactly the same width set around the neck and dipping forward under the chin.

Lining for the new "liquid" metal fabric evening cloaks is ermine or rabbit, showing in the immensely wide turned-back cape collar, the outside of which is upholstered in a double bolster effect with tiny jeweled buttons fixing the padding at intervals.

Fur is used on all the new suits, as a straight close-fitting curate band of Russian sable around the neck of a little rosewood brown velours made with a straight hunting jacket and a skirt finely plaited across the front breadth, but perfectly plain in the back. No other fur appears on this suit; the sleeves are close-fitting and widen slightly at the wrist, but are fitted with storm wristlets, just as hunting coats are. These are made of heavily embroidered chamois material and are the only touch of color.

Fur in broad bands and in tiny rolls trims evening gowns of metal lace, pailletted crepe de chine and satin. A perina of fluffy silver fur, extending half way to the elbows, is used on a silver tissue dinner dress. It is the only trimming, and the material is arranged in long, straight panels from the shallow neckline to the hem, caught at the low waistline by an Egyptian scarf of pearl, silver and diamond-beaded gauze, fastened in front by an Egyptian motif and hanging to the floor.

There is no hip trimming on any of the new models. The line from shoulder to ankle is as straight as possible and what fullness is necessary is obtained by inverted plaits or silts of the underslip over which the circular tunic or lace-floated outer skirt slip gracefully.

This circular model is more used than was first expected. But the flare is so slight that on first sight the gown appears to be straight cut. It is only at the edge of the flounce that the sweep is noticeable, and here it is accentuated by rolls of fur or plaited velvet bands.

Couldn't Help Fussing.
Betty, age three, was to take a dose of castor oil. Her mother had told her if she took her medicine without any fuss she might have a piece of candy afterward. Betty promised and soon the oil was prepared and a box of candy was placed on the kitchen table. Betty looked longingly at the candy and said: "Mother, you can put the candy away. I'm going to fuss."

the year, innumerable are those who regret his resignation, for they recognize the fact that a remarkable man has withdrawn from the state service after having sown a seed which is certain to bring forth even greater and more meritorious results than have already been achieved.

A soldier, a physician, a disciplinarian of the highest type, a good friend of his men and an executive of the very first water—Col. Chandler is freely acknowledged to be such by all who know him—is about to lay aside his shield of authority, whereat there is much gloom in the barracks of the state police throughout the state. Its charter member has completed the task set before him.

RUSSIAN GIRL SPEAKS AT Y.W.C.A.

Over a hundred and twenty-five girls and women met at the open house on Tuesday evening in "World Fellowship Week" at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters. After the first grand march, Rose and Beatrice Brosnan, who came to this country as refugees from "Little Russia" about a year and a half ago, danced two Russian dances. Both of the girls are in school here; Rose at high school and Beatrice in one of the graded schools of the city, where they are now making their home with their parents. The girls were in gay Russian costume, red and black skirts and brightly embroidered bodices, with Rose wearing a head dress of long ribbons and Beatrice a gay headkerchief. After their dancing, which was enthusiastically applauded, Miss Rose told in amazingly rapid and excellent English—and she has been in this country but a year and a half—of the difference between American girls and Russian girls. The one thought uppermost in that telling was that American girls are "safe" and have nothing to fear. "T. no in and out of their homes, it in the evenings to parties a ailments; they have no fear of being killed themselves or of finding some or all of the members of their families killed when they return. That is what happens to Russian girls. Sometimes, before she left Russia, girls would go out on errands or to school and would never return; or returning would find that a brother or sister or the whole family had been killed. Rose herself was separated from her mother nine weeks, but finally they were reunited and by traveling stealthily at night they finally managed to cross the Polish border and escape so that they could come to this country. And oh, how happy Rose and her sad-eyed little sister and mother are to be in America! And what a good time they did have at the Y. W. C. A. Rose said that she had enjoyed the Y. W. C. A. in Russia, only it was so uncertain. Sometimes there would be only a few girls left to enjoy the Y. W. C. A., then there would be quite a large number for a time. But belonging there made her feel much more at home here when she came to Kingston and to the Kingston Y. W. C. A. Even yet she was not quite used to not being afraid at night. A little later in the evening Beatrice danced a characteristic Russian solo dance.

The 1924 Model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car $995

The unprecedented popularity of the Studebaker Light-Six can be traced to the fact that it represents a degree of automobile value that the public has sought for years.

It is built complete in the great Studebaker factories.

By manufacturing complete motors, transmissions, axles, frames, bodies, tops, castings, forgings, and stampings, parts-makers' profits are eliminated from cost and one profit only is included in Studebaker prices.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them with Creomulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Her Reason.

A woman advertised for a caretaker for her town home, and after interviewing a large number of applicants found one that suited her. "Thanks for giving me the job," said the man, "and might I ask you a question? You stated in the ad that you wanted a married man. Does that mean you have some work in view for my wife?" "Oh, no," replied the woman, "I wanted a married man so as to be sure I got some one used to taking orders from a woman."

$100,000 STATUE BRINGS $50

Italian Farmer Who Found Marble Tosses of a Venus First Sold It for $5.

The history of some pieces of marble which were found buried in a field at Sinnessa, near Naples, in ancient days the site of a Greek colony, has formed the subject of a long-drawn-out law case in which the government has at length secured an important verdict.

The fragments were apparently of no particular value and the farmer sold them for $5. They were on their way to the new purchaser when the government director of antiquities, Professor Spinazzola, ordered him to return them to Naples for examination. The professor, having looked at them, exercised his powers of compulsory purchase and bought the fragments for $50.

Under his direction they were cleaned and put together, when they appeared as the torso of a beautiful Venus, undoubtedly by the hand of Praxiteles (the greatest of the Attic sculptors of the Fourth century B. C.) and worth about $100,000.

The farmer sued the government for half the value of the find, and after gaining a verdict in two courts lost his case when the government took it to the court of appeals. The statue is now one of the most precious possessions of the Naples National museum.

Hypnotizing Animals.

In India it is known that a cobra caught by the neck and gently pressed will soon become stiff and remain so for a considerable time, either coiled up or out straight. A frog fastened to a board and turned suddenly upside down, goes into a trance. Other animals are susceptible to this treatment, some more quickly than others. If you pick up a crab and wave it in the air it becomes immobile, a female bending her legs over her abdomen, a male sticking them out almost straight. The same is true of the freshwater crayfish, only this resists for a much longer time than the crab.

Large Family Records.

Although 24 children in a family is not altogether an uncommon thing in the Province of Quebec, the birth of a twenty-fourth child to the same parents in Geneva was found to be of sufficient importance to telegraph the news to England. This has caused a London paper to remark that there has been larger families in England than that of the Swiss, and the writer proceeds to say that a county history of Cumberland relates that at Kilton-le-Moor, in 1797, "a man and his wife accompanied by their 30 children might have been seen proceeding to church to the christening of their thirty-first."

Inverted Ribbon Ruffles.

An exceptionally new and distinctive use of ribbon is that of setting graduated rows of ribbon onto skirt so that the narrowest ribbon is at the bottom of the skirt and the widest near the top. Another unique feature of this trimming is that the ribbon is sewed at the lower edge instead of the upper, leaving the upper part of the ribbon to stand out from the material. The same application appears on the small puffed sleeves.

Winter and the Large Hat.

There have been few models of large hats in the extreme picture variety, except formal velvet ones trimmed with huge bows or sweeping feathers. This season's large hats are most often made to appear so by the application of trimming.

BORGMAN HERE WITH PATERSON

Leading Metropolitan League Scorer Will Oppose His Former Team-mates at the Armory Tonight When Kingston Meets Paterson.

Benny Borgman, who for the past two basketball seasons had an enormous following in this city, playing with the Kingston team, will make his first appearance of this season at the local armory court tonight. It is not expected that Borgman will receive the Kingston fans' support during the contest tonight. Just who will play the guard position opposing Borgman has not been announced, but M. Husta held him in check during the final period of the game Saturday last at Paterson and probably Morgenweck will make a change in the line-up starting the struggle this evening.

Although the Paterson team is standing fourth it is considered one of the strongest outfits in the circuit. In the Paterson line-up are other players known to Kingston fans. Knoblauch, the pivot man, was a member of the Kingston team in former seasons as were Artie Powers and Nick Harvey. Schwab and Ripley also have been seen on the local court.

In the game Saturday night Borgman scored five fields and five foul baskets, a total of fifteen points, which needless to say, was the main reason for the local representatives' defeat. Borgman, considered one of the best shots in the game today, is leading the Metropolitan League in individual scoring and is one of the biggest attractions of the league. The game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock, with the usual dancing following.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenixia, Nov. 13.—The special meetings conducted by the Rev. Mr. Ahrens closed Sunday evening by a big rally at Chichester in the new hall. A large congregation from several places attended. The children sang again very nicely, besides the large chorus choir rendered several selections. The special numbers during the last week were a ladies' quartet by Mrs. Shurtler, Mrs. A. and Mrs. R. B. Longyear and Mrs. Hilson, solo, Mr. Toms, quartet by the Rev. and Mrs. Ahrens, Freda Kron and Mr. Toms; a duet, Mrs. Colange and Mr. Toms; a solo by the Rev. Mr. Ahrens and a duet by Harriet Loomis and Grace Ahrens. Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Ahrens, Mrs. Crosby and Mrs. Toms were the organists during the month. There were fifty-two converts, some already having identified themselves with the Baptist church here and others will Sunday in the other churches.

Another deer season is about closed. A few have been successful. Mr. Ford was successful on the first day. Mr. Spink shot a dandy from his window as it seemed to come out in the close valley, perhaps to get away from the hunters.

Adrian Loomis is taking charge of Haines Falls station during the absence of Agent Gellner, who is away for a few days.

Prof. Woods, D. Benjamin, M. Schoonmaker and A. P. Loomis of Hunter spent a few days here with Adrian Loomis hunting deer.

The freight depot here is closed for the winter the same as it was last winter. That is, that no agent is in charge. It's looked after by Agent Loomis.

Election is over. The newly elected supervisor J. Simpson carried it by a large majority having received a heavy Democratic complimentary vote. Mr. Coons his opponent had been supervisor and had been an excellent one.

Quite a crowd from here walked to Chichester Thursday evening to see the movies "The Fog" given there. All enjoyed it and cars brought them all home.

The cellar is being dug under the I. O. O. F. Hall for the purpose of installing a heater. Movies will be resumed then, at least once a week.

Breithaupt has had a drug store property on Main street, next to Keen's store, moved back from the sidewalk, a nice cellar placed under it and the rooming changed which when completed, will make a fine property and well located.

Mrs. Simpson's niece, who visited her last summer, died suddenly in Brooklyn. Her body will be brought to this place enroute to Windham for interment.

Mr. Lockwood and family have moved in rooms in the winter cottage.

The Aid met at Mrs. Meeker's Thursday and accomplished considerable business. The election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. Simpson, vice-president; Mrs. Bouso, secretary; and Mrs. Van Steenburgh, treasurer. Sunday evening they will be installed during the evening service. At the close ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Meeker and Mrs. H. Baldwin who entertained the Aid.

The Aid will hold their annual chicken pie supper at A. Whispe's. Mary Van Steenburgh is enjoying her stay at Red Bank, N. J. She has visited several points of interest. She saw the great dirigible and its interesting housing.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Chase and family of Chichester are on their way in the house auto to Florida for the winter. H. Kincaid and wife went in their car with them for company. We trust to see them all back after the winter and hope Mrs. Chase will be much improved in health.

Mrs. Bunce nicely entertained a company of friends one evening. Verna Boice nicely entertained the Misses Helen and Frances Hill, Helen Gulnac and Lorna Van Demark on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Whispe gave a fine chicken supper to a company of girls for Halloween remembrance. It was greatly enjoyed and much appreciated for the girls had a jolly time in every way, not only socially but in Halloween festivities. Outside of the supper, with some fine singing as serenaders. These present were: Misses Lorna Van Demark, Helen and Frances Hill, Verna Boice, Helen Gulnac, Harriet Loomis, Esther Sumerville, Grace Ahrens, Helen Verry, Elsie Rider, Beatrice Wright and Mrs. W. Smith.

Cats and Catapults!

by the Veteran Motorist

THIS past summer I went down to the police games at Travers Island. I've always liked track and field sports, and especially do I like to see what fine athletes many of our policemen are.

But this particular day I was mostly interested in watching stalwart Matt McGrath throw the hammer in his old time form.

I watched him take his stance, carefully balance himself, shift his grip a bit, then round and round whirl the great hammer, until, with a mighty fling, it went catapulting over the field.

"Suffering cats!" someone cried. "Some throw!"

And ever since that day I have always associated up-standing Matt McGrath, and his mighty hammer, with cats and catapults!

We can't all be hammer-throwers, but we all can realize that Socony Gasoline for heavy-duty driving can make every day a record day in hauling. It has power—enormous reserves of power. It exemplifies a perfect co-ordination of start, speed and stamina. It is a wonderful gasoline.

EX-CROWN PRINCE WANTS SECLUSION

Cows And Chickens Henceforth He Tells Newspaper Man—Happy To Be Back With Family.

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Cels, Prussian Silesia, Nov. 14.—"Cows and chickens are the things for me—not politics," said former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, in a talk with the International News Service correspondent today upon his estate. Wilhelm characterized it as this very last interview.

The ex-crown prince was in a happy frame of mind and said he was delighted more than words could convey to be back in his old home with his family. Wilhelm walked over his estates and chatted with servants. He found everything in good order, but suffering from the general wave of depression caused by Germany's economic and financial collapse.

"I am here as a private citizen as I have repeatedly said before," continued Friedrich Wilhelm. "I am not interested in politics. I plan to lead a simple isolated life devoting my whole attention to my family and my farm. It would be the best possible service to me if the press would leave me alone. I cannot make an extended statement. It would only embarrass me."

The crown prince was as happy as a schoolboy after a night's sound sleep beneath his own roof top.

He arrived in a big open motor car, accompanied by Adjutant Mueller, his aide, and a political police official who had met the party at the frontier, as well as a personal friend.

Wilhelm's daughters, who had been waiting impatiently for him for two days, ran out to meet him hanging upon his arms and smiling up into his face. Wilhelm had difficulty in freeing his arms to embrace his wife.

As soon as the limousine drove through the castle gates they banged shut, frustrating the reporters waiting outside.

Wilhelm's room was filled with flowers sent by friends and neighbors.

KINGSTON WANTS ANOTHER GAME

With Poughkeepsie High School Eleven to be Played Here Thanksgiving Day—Local Eleven Much Stronger Than in Early Season.

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

Kingston High School seeks a game with the Poughkeepsie High School eleven to be played in this city on Thanksgiving Day, November 29. Poughkeepsie has been sounded out on the proposition and although the Bridge City team has not given any favorable response it is thought that the matter can be finally brought about.

Although Poughkeepsie defeated the local eleven when the two teams met earlier in the season at the Bridge City, the supporters of the Kingston team are by no means satisfied that the Bridge City team is superior to the Maroon and White. The feeling is further heightened by the fact that Port Jervis, a team which was unable to score against Kingston, made two touchdowns against Poughkeepsie Saturday last, tying the score, 14 all. The Kingston team has been improving steadily and according to followers, it is doubtful if there is any eleven in the valley that is better than the local combination.

The result of this game, if played, will have no effect on the standing of the teams in the Duso League, but would simply be played to decide the supremacy of these eleven.

PRESBYTERIAN FAIR NEXT WEEK

The annual fair and turkey dinner of the Roundout Presbyterian Church will be held in the chapel on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 20 and 21. The dinner will be served on Tuesday from 11:30 to 2 o'clock, and a salad supper Wednesday evening from 5:30 to 7 o'clock. The supper will be followed by an entertaining program.

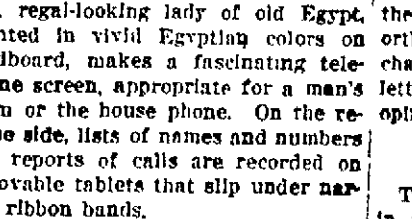

These annual fairs of the church are always looked forward to not only by the members of the congregation but by many others. The decorations this year will be exceptionally beautiful and will show the prevailing Spanish influence—the brilliancy of coloring of the orange Azalea with its touches of vermillion and tawny shadows against branches of bronze oak leaves. The various booths will contain domestic and fancy articles and homemade candy. There will also be the fish pond for the children and a woodcraft booth in charge of the boys of Harry G. Smith's Sunday school class.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN TRINITY M. E. CHURCH

Egyptian Screen

A regal-looking lady of old Egypt, painted in vivid Egyptian colors on cardboard, makes a fascinating telephone screen, appropriate for a man's room or the house phone. On the reverse side, lists of names and numbers and reports of calls are recorded on removable tablets that slip under narrow ribbon bands.

Needed Awakening.
A Yankee tourist was being shown over an old church wherein hundreds of people were buried.

"A great many people sleep between these walls," said the guide, indicating the inscription-covered floor with a sweep of his hand.

"So?" said the American. "Same way over in our country. Why don't you get a more interesting preacher?"

NEW GAUGE OF HORSEPOWER

Method of Showing the Relation Between It and a Kilowatt Has Been Devised.

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

More than 100 years ago James Watt took the strength of a "strong London draft-horse" as a unit of measurement to indicate the power of his steam engine. This unit, which was the amount of energy that would raise 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute, he called one horsepower.

Electric motors, automobile engines and all other forms of energy-producing machinery have been measured in terms of Watt's horsepower ever since, says a bulletin of the New York State Committee of Public Utility. The "strong London draft-horse" is dead as Eolippus and his bones are dust, but his mighty thighs have been so imbedded in tradition that from that time to this no one has questioned the horsepower of a horse.

Now the unit of measurement, originally taken from a horse, is to be used to measure the strength of other horses, to determine, in terms of mechanical horsepower, how strong they are. There has been designed a wagon, the wheels of which are geared to a hydraulic pump by means of which any required pull can be established and a uniform load resistance maintained. To this wagon will be harnessed various types of horses, from the lordly Percheron, weighing a full ton, to the 900-pound light-harness horse, and from the results there will be established a ratio between weight and strength similar to the tables for electric motors, showing the number of horsepower delivered for every kilowatt of energy consumed.

BAKERS DROP LOTUS LEAVES

Shanghai Government Forces Them to Use Waxed Paper for Wrapping Their Products.

Shanghai bakers used to wrap their bread and cakes in nice green lotus leaves. But the days of this romantic practice are gone forever. According to the new regulations covering bakery products, bread and other products must be suitably wrapped in greaseproof or similar papers. The clause in the regulation covering this particular requirement quoted by Assistant Trade Commissioner A. V. Smith in a report to the Department of Commerce, reads as follows:

"That bread and bakery products shall, upon sale or when carried or handled for sale, or delivered in baskets, vehicles or otherwise, be suitably wrapped in greaseproof paper or other cleanly covering, in such manner as to completely protect the bread from dirt, dust and flies, or from harmful contact in handling."

Now Senate Lacks Octogenarian.

The death of Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont removes from the senate rolls the last octogenarian. And on March 4, when congress adjourned, there were three.

Senator Page, also of Vermont, who was eighty last January, retired on that date.

Knute Nelson of Minnesota, three weeks younger than Page, died in May on his way from Washington to his home.

And Dillingham, midway in his eightieth year, died early in July.

Removal of these octogenarians from the senate leaves Francis B. Warren of Wyoming, now one month past seventy-nine, the oldest member. Next comes LeBaron Colt of Rhode Island, seventy-seven; then Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, a youngster of seventy-three; three; Lodge of Massachusetts, three months younger than Cummins, fourth.

Denmark's Alphabetical War.

There is a battle of the big and little letters now raging in Denmark. The Danish language, like the German, has hitherto adhered to the Middle-age practice of spelling its nouns with capital letters, but a progressive movement of growing strength demands the substitution of the little letters in conformity with English, French and other languages. The demand has aroused the fury of the conservative elements.

Now Minister of Education Appel has determined to introduce the email-letter practice in the schools. As in the Bolshevik reform of the Russian orthography and the Bulgarian changes, the big letter and the small letter have become symbols of political opinion.

Somewhat Mixed.
The justice of the peace in a town in Ohio, in pursuance of his duties, had to hear and judge the cases that were brought before him and also to perform occasional marriage ceremonies. He found it difficult to discharge the various functions of his office.

Peppermint.
Mint is regularly farmed in England, France and Germany and New York state. Fifteen tons of herb produce about 100 pounds of menthol oil used for medicine. It is obtained by distillation. The average crop per acre is about 185 cwt. of plants. Much peppermint candy is adulterated.

ETHEL H. GRAY'S APPEAL ARGUED

CAMPBELL LECTURE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Review of Procedure in Which
Samuel M. Gray Seeks to Recover
Property Transferred, He Says
Under Pressure, To Daughter.

The appeal by Ethel H. Gray, daughter of Samuel M. Gray, from the order of Judge Rosch made in directing the trial by jury of the questions of fact involved in the action brought by her father, Samuel M. Gray, to set aside the deed made on the 14th day of June, 1920, conveying to her his residence on Albany avenue, and $200,000 worth of securities, was argued at the Appellate Division at Albany Tuesday by Judge James Jenkins for the appellant, and Judge Clearwater, for Samuel M. Gray, the respondent.

Papers filed with the Appellate Division show that in May, 1920, Noble Smith of Hunter, in Greene county, a sister of Samuel M. Gray, upon a petition and affidavits stating that Gray was suffering from senile dementia, in the early stages of senility, was incapable of caring for himself or his property and estate, and that there was no reasonable hope of his recovering his mental poise, procured from Judge Hasbrouck an order directing that a commission issue to Walter N. Gill, directing him to cause the sheriff of Ulster county to procure a jury and enquire into the lunacy of Gray. This order was granted on the 5th of June. On the 14th of June, 1920, an agreement was presented to Gray in which he was asked to convey all his property to his daughter, Ethel, and he was told that unless he signed it, he would be confined in the Middletown State Asylum for the rest of his life. That he asked for a statement of the proceedings, and the commissioner appointed to enquire into his lunacy, and that his request was denied. That he was in ill health, despondent because of the recent death of his wife, mentally disturbed, terrorized by the threat that he would be confined in an insane asylum, and in no position fully to comprehend his rights or the ultimate effect of what he did, he signed the agreement. That his daughter immediately took possession of all his property and has held it since that time. That in the papers presented to Judge Hasbrouck, it was alleged that he was living at the time of the deed, and that the name of Hurler, who had been an inmate of his household, that he had said that he proposed to marry her, the papers filed with the Appellate Division showed that he had recovered from his trouble, had married Miss Moore by whom he had a child, boy, that he had requested his daughter to return his property to him; that she absolutely refused to do so, said she meant to keep it, whereupon he began his action to set aside the agreement.

Judge Jenkins who argued the case for Ethel Gray, said that the whole matter was a family affair; it was not one that either required or should receive the intervention of the courts; that Miss Moore had been a servant of Mr. Gray's household; that before his marriage to her, he had removed to her residence and that his brother, Charles F. Gray, his sister, Abbie Smith, his daughter, Ethel Gray, his niece, Florence Pratt and his nephew, Arthur Elliott, all had united in the application to have his property transferred to his daughter. Judge Rosch directed these questions to be passed upon by a jury.

First: Did the plaintiff at the time of the transfer referred to in the complaint, comprehend and understand the nature and effect thereof?

Second: Did the plaintiff execute the instrument involved in this action under the belief that unless he did execute it he would be confined in the Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, New York?

Third: Did the defendant give the plaintiff an adequate consideration for the real and chattel property described in the instrument involved in this action?

That the case was not one for trial by a jury because a jury would be apt to be influenced by their sympathies. Judge Clearwater, who argued the case for Mr. Gray, said that the whole performance was an audacious, cunning, wicked conspiracy to prevent the marriage of the plaintiff to the woman who had seduced him and saved his life, and to strip him of his property; that after his daughter got possession of it, she had snapped her fingers at her father's face and had told him she could set him and his wife and his baby out on the sidewalk and would do it. He said that the granting of an order directing a trial by jury was purely a discretionary matter with the court; that the transaction had shocked every right-minded person in Kingston, and that ninety per cent of the others; that the case preeminently was one for the consideration of a jury; that there had been no abuse of the discretionary power of the court, and that the order should be affirmed. The court took the papers and reserved decision.

MONROE IN FOR LIFE GETS 30 DAYS ADDED TO TERM

"Bad Bill" Monroe, in Sing Sing prison for the murder of Andrew Barrett, the hermit of Fishkill, violated parole last week, and as a result the State Prison Department added forty days to his sentence Tuesday.

Monroe was not disturbed, however, as his sentence is for life. He was put in the awkward squad.

Illustrates How So Many Lose Sight
And Modern Methods Of Overcoming Their Great Handicap—
Brought Here By Junior League.

This morning at the high school auditorium Charles T. T. Campbell, director of the League for the Handicapped of Detroit, gave a very interesting and instructive illustrated lecture concerning blindness, how people become blind and what the soldiers who were blinded in the war are doing.

Mr. Campbell said that one out of every thousand persons in the United States would lose his eyesight within the next five years. This statement is rather cold blooded, but the averages of former years show that this will be true. By a series of pictures Mr. Campbell showed how people become blind. First in the workshops, an emery wheel might chip and a piece of it get into the eye, some splinters might fly into the eye, and a hundred and one other things may happen. Little by little this condition is being overcome by the use of the latest appearing inventions for safety. Another great cause of blindness is carelessness. A child may be playing with the scissors or some other sharp instrument and when the mother is not watching she may make a slip and stick her eye. Blindness also comes at the birth of a child or a few days after. This condition is also being combated, the doctors and nurses now knowing the fundamentals required to cure these eye diseases.

Mr. Campbell then turned to the soldiers who had been blinded in the war. He said that a home had been established in Baltimore and that there they were learning to earn their own living. The pictures showed the soldiers at work and at play. They are taught woodworking, farming, storekeeping and typewriting, besides learning to read by the sense of touch, they bowl, swim, dance and enjoy themselves as any other person might.

Then Mr. Campbell told of the work of the Detroit Junior League. He said that they were endeavoring to help those who were badly crippled get an education and were working in every possible way to help the poor.

Mr. Campbell then told of a certain American man who had been blind since the age of five years. This man had worked hard not withstanding his handicap. He passed the entrance examination for Harvard at the age of 16, but was unable to go there. He went to Switzerland where he climbed the highest peaks including Mount Blanc. He then went to England where he established a school for the blind. This man was knighted by King George and not long after died in the school he had established. This man was Mr. Campbell's father and for that reason Mr. Campbell has started a crusade against blindness.

Mr. Campbell concluded with an appeal for all to help the Junior League of Kingston in all the things it undertakes.

Mr. Campbell was brought to this city by the Junior League and also spoke today at the Rotary Club.

THE ROBINSON'S ACTION AGAINST SHEPARD HERE

On June 30, this year an automobile owned by Finley J. Shepard of Roxbury, and an auto of John Robinson came in collision on the Ashokan Boulevard. No one was injured but the Robinson car was badly damaged and Robinson, through W. D. & W. D. Brimmer, Jr., brought an action in supreme court to recover damages. Tuesday Edward A. Kohl, attorney for Mr. Shepard, moved before Supreme Court Justice Daniel Cobalan in New York City to have the place of trial changed from Ulster county to New York. After argument Justice Cobalan denied the motion of Attorney Kohl and granted a motion made by William D. Brimmer, Jr., that the trial be held in Ulster county. Mr. Shepard who married Helen Gould was on his way from his summer home in Roxbury to New York at the time his car struck the one of Robinson.

That the case was not one for trial by a jury because a jury would be apt to be influenced by their sympathies. Judge Clearwater, who argued the case for Mr. Gray, said that the whole performance was an audacious, cunning, wicked conspiracy to prevent the marriage of the plaintiff to the woman who had seduced him and saved his life, and to strip him of his property; that after his daughter got possession of it, she had snapped her fingers at her father's face and had told him she could set him and his wife and his baby out on the sidewalk and would do it. He said that the granting of an order directing a trial by jury was purely a discretionary matter with the court; that the transaction had shocked every right-minded person in Kingston, and that ninety per cent of the others; that the case preeminently was one for the consideration of a jury; that there had been no abuse of the discretionary power of the court, and that the order should be affirmed. The court took the papers and reserved decision.

Second: Did the plaintiff execute the instrument involved in this action under the belief that unless he did execute it he would be confined in the Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, New York?

Third: Did the defendant give the plaintiff an adequate consideration for the real and chattel property described in the instrument involved in this action?

FRANKLIN STREET CHURCH BUILDING PLAN ENDORSED

Pastor Says Colored People Here Miss Help of Whites.

The second quarterly conference of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church was held on Monday evening with a large attendance. The Rev. Stephen S. McNeil, presiding elder of the Hudson river district, and successor of the late Benjamin Judd, presided over the conference, which was probably one of the most interesting quarterly conferences held in some time. He read and commented on the 133rd Psalm, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." He said he has not found a more cooperative spirit in any of the churches of his district than the church existing in Kingston between pastor and people. He assured the conference that they have a splendid leader for their pastor and one of the leading characters of the conference and that where this harmony exists success is bound to follow.

After the routine of the quarterly conference business the church secretary read the action of the members' meeting for the construction of a brick church on a community plan and the quarterly conference was asked to act upon it. Dr. McNeil commented on the spirit of the unity of progress, stating that it was a long felt need that cannot be delayed. The quarterly conference then unanimously adopted the action of the members' meeting for the construction of a brick church. The pastor said that this matter, although decided here, was the heartiest wish with the plan of the pastor of the late Benjamin Judd and as a matter of fact was brought up in one of the quarterly conferences without any action. It is to be regretted, he said, that nothing has been done to help the colored people of this city to speak of. Practically every other city where there is a body of colored people have taken a progressive step in helping them in some way. Certainly our citizens will realize the importance of this matter. Pastoralistic talk is not progression but retrogression. Let us not hear it.

McEntee Buys $1,800,000 MARKS FOR FIVE DOLLARS

Local Insurance Man Adopts Novel Advertising Scheme.

Deputy County Treasurer Dwight L. McEntee while in New York city recently bought a supply of German marks. For one hundred mark notes whose par value before the World War was $1,800,000 he paid $5.

He also bought some marks of lesser denomination and in The Freeman job printing department had an advertisement of the McEntee Insurance Agency printed on the backs in red ink. He plans to distribute marks as souvenirs.

Mr. McEntee said that the reason his supply of mark notes was so "expensive" was due to the fact that the supply arriving in New York city is being taken up as fast as it arrives and used along similar lines by other industrial concerns.

BALLOON TIRE IS DEMONSTRATED

Many Advantages Apparently Result From Doubled Size and Less Than Half Usual Air Pressure. The first automobile to be equipped with the new balloon tires in Kingston is a Nash sedan which was being demonstrated Tuesday about town by Charles A. Warren of the Ulster Garage, Ltd. Mr. Warren demonstrated the new tire to a large number of people including city officials who pronounced the tire a most marvelous development in pneumatic tire construction. A standard Nash sedan which had been equipped with Firestone balloon tire tires was used in the demonstration.

A car equipped with balloon tires gives a degree of riding comfort which is almost unbelievable until demonstrated. In demonstrating the tire Mr. Warren drove over a curb of the usual height with scarcely more than a jar to the occupants of the car. Through greatly reduced air pressure, eighteen pounds in the front tires and 20 pounds in the rear, the tire which is of twice the usual size absorbs all ordinary rough spots without transmitting the shock to the car. Reduced air pressure and increased size takes up the average blow of a stone within the tread without injuring the sidewalls of the tire which are of thinner material.

Because of the soft cushioning effect of the tire longer car life and less tire wear are claimed. There is far less air leaks on account of the lower air pressure and by doubling the width of the tire on the ground skidding is reduced and braking power is increased. The larger surface presented to the road is claimed to increase the braking ability and make quick stopping possible without the use of four wheel brakes. Those who rode in the car with Mr. Warren claim the use of the tire has increased riding comfort to a large degree as well as added to safety of motoring.

Report of the membership committee was as follows: Mrs. Vandewater, 41 members; Mrs. Hendricks, 36 members; As Mrs. Hendricks's side was the losing one, her committee served refreshments to all present.

After the business session Miss Lucy Merritt delightfully entertained those present with two clever readings, "Diddle's Trials Among the Yankees," and "The Little Outcasts." After each number she generously responded to encores. Miss Merritt also gave a very pleasing musical number, "The Music Box," which was greatly enjoyed by all.

SENATOR WANTS U. S. TO INTERFERE

Keep Ex-Kaiser Out of Germany. Demands King. Taking Issue With Coolidge's Hands-off Policy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 14.—The United States government, officially and unofficially, should exert all the power at its command to prevent the return of the former emperor to Germany, even as a private citizen, Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, declared today, taking issue with President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes on this point.

It has been announced that this government will not protect the emperor's return either singly or in conjunction with other nations.

A return of the former emperor, King said, "even under a pledge to the German government to remain out of political affairs, probably would ignite the spark that would inflame Europe and perhaps the world."

King spent three months this summer in Germany and Russia.

"While there is in Germany a general feeling of hate for the former monarchists," King explained, "there remains, however, the immediate danger that this 'man of straw' if he returns, may again become a national leader and a most sinister force for the peace and harmony of the world."

"In this situation it is the duty of all lovers of liberty in America to do everything to prevent the collapse of the existing government of Germany."

Princeton Line-up Unchanged.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Princeton, N. J., Nov. 14.—Announcement was made today by Bill Roper, head coach, that the same Princeton line-up which took the field against Harvard will face Yale in the bowl at New Haven Saturday.

This statement set at rest many rumors of a prospective shake-up in the Tiger team.

Odd Souls. There are odd souls, who, if people will not be saved from destruction by them, get mad at them.
